A company has been formed in Sydney under the

years, at 116;.
A company has been formed in Sydney under the name of the Great Queensland Silver-mining Company in Ravenswood, Limited, with a capital of £10,000 in shares of £1, to work 90 acres of leased land in the vicinity of King and Bolkby's mine near Ravenswood, Northern Queensland. The directors elected by the sharsholders are—Mesers. J. C. Neild, chairman; J. L. C. Rankin, David Wilson, T. H. Hale, and A. Armstrong. Twenty thousand shares are retained on the reserve register pending further prospecting of the ompany's ground.

Trade in the Import markets to-day was characterized.

by but little activity, and values generally were with-out much chauge. Flour had a steady trade sale at £12 10s. to £13 for Adelaide. £12 to £13 for New South Wales, and at £12 for ordinary brands of Victorian. Wheat is scarce, and in request at from 5s, 6d, to 5s, 8d. Dried fruits are neglected; currants, good old fruit in cases worth 4½d.; and prime new at 4½d.; valencias were done at 6d. Arrowroot is firmer, valencias were done at 60. Arrowroot is firmer, owing to the smallness of the Queensland crop, and holders ask 5d. Of grocery goods generally, stocks being ample in almost all lines, there is no change to note. English mat had attention at 8s., at which a small parcel was placed, and for New Zealand 6s. was given. English hops brought 1s. 8d., and a line of American was quitted at 1s. 4d. In liquots, we hear of business in Foster's beer, to arrive, at 10s. 6d. and 7s. 3d., quarts and pints; and some 200 casks of Tennent's stout, also to arrive, were placed at agents' quotations. Rum had little attention; bolders are firm. Hennessy's case brandy was placed at 33a. 6d. and 46a. 6d., single and three star respectively; and several lines of second class brandles were placed at agents' quota-tions. Business in Walker's whisky was also done at current rates. The metal market is without change; the uittance of some small lines of galvanized iron was made at late quotations. Rosin is well held, and up to £9 10s.

one at £12 10s. Messrs. Fraser and Co. will offer at auction tomorrow (Wednesday) moraing, colonial sugars and other groceries; and in the afternoon, the Walter D. Wallett's cargo of St. John's timber.

At the auction sales of leather to-day, the market was depressed for almost all descriptions, light two receiving the most attention. Mesers. Maiden, 1 receiving the most attention. Mesers. Maiden, Hill, and Clark, Mort and Co., Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, P. L. Barker, and John Bridge report sales at the following prices:—Kip. 12d. to 15½d.; sole, 7d. to 10d.; calf. 20½d. to 30d.; yearling, 18d. to 24d.; tweed, 18d. to 27½d.; harness, 10d. to 13d.; bag, 8s. 6d. to 12s.; bridle, 8s. to 11d.; basile, 3s. 3d. to 12s. 6d.; bellies, 7½d.; kangaroo, 17d, to 19d.

The Vienna correspondent of the Economist, writing under date 19th December, says that more business is being done in iron in Austria and Germany than has been the case for a long time, and the prices of every branch of iron and steel have risen. All the works have orders enough to employ them for months to come branch of iron and steel have risen. All the works have orders enough to employ them for mouths to come. The Austrian works are producing rails for Servian and Italian railways, and the Westphalian works have received large orders from Spain, France, and America. The Trade Journal says that an exhibition of jute, grown in the domain lands of Shoobra, Egypt, was held lately, superintended by Mr. Grant, of Dundee. The consists of the intervanced excellent but the quality of the jute was pronounced excellent, but the quantity per acre falls short of expectation, owing to defective irrigation in the early stage of germination, which need not occur again. It is considered that a solid success has been achieved, and that jute culture ill be a permanent source of prosperity to Egy he macerating machine, invented by Mr. Garwo oved highly efficient.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1682.

A correspondent, writing on the subject of ospital management, argues that the proved nefficiency of the medical superintendence of the Melbourne Hospital is no reflection on th principle of having a medical superintendent, cause the gentleman in charge at Melbourne is incompetent and young, and his appoint ment was a job, done to please some member of the committee. But a thing that has happened once may happen again, and it is per fectly clear that to insist upon having a medical man at the head of such an establishment is no guarantee of efficiency. The argument, if it proves anything, proves that committees d things, inasmuch as they are capable of abusing their patronage, and of choosing

Our correspondent said that we had done our best to prevent a medical man from being placed at the head of the Sydney Infirmary. He has not been at the pains to understand us. We have done nothing of the kind. What we want is for the committee to keep their hands free, and not to tie themselves up to be compelled to choose a doctor. If they leave the matter open they can choose a doctor if they like, or they can choose a man of business if they What they want is a first-class practical man, with the necessary talent for managing people. If he understands medical science, that is all to the good; but the essential part of his qualification is that he should be a good superintending manager. It is not always easy, especially at a moderate salary, to get men with a great combination of talents, and it would be better to have a good manager who was not a doctor, than a good doctor who was not a manager. It very often happens that professional men do not shine in the conduct of business. Their scholastic training, and their bookishness, and their comparative seclusion from business affairs during their college career, which is the period when character and habits are largely formed, rob them of the sort of experience which young men get whose pursuits lie in business, and who are forced to study men and things rather than books. This is no reflection upon action was large. At Cambridge the proposal ofessional men. It is very difficult to find all-round men who are good at every point. was appointed to report upon the best means It happens now and again that we pick up a professional man who is also clever at busiess, and who has a talent for administration. This is more the result of a natural endowment, or of an accidentally happy training, than a consequence of attending lectures and walking hospitals. When such a man is to be found, he is the right sort of man to put at the head of a hospital, but then such men are not to be found every day. It may also be stated that sometimes a professional training is even a disqualification for management. It is useless to dis guise the fact that there is often a great deal of jealousy amongst medicall men, while at the same time there is also an esprit de corps which leads them to shield sach other against the non-professional class. The two things may seem to be contradictory, but they ares not; and hospital management, which hast often displayed both, requires to be equally protected against both. It is no disparagement to the important part medical men play in a hospital to say that they are not its proprieto es. A hospital belongs to the country and the people, and not to the profession. It is invaluable to the profession, and the profession to it, but it-exists for the sake of the parients, and not for the sake of the faculty. The high quality of the sake of the faculty. The high quality of the service which medical men render must not blind us to the fact that, after all their proper status in a hospital is that of servants. They are engaged to do a certain thingthe most important thing doubtless that has to be done in the institution. But, after all, they are the servants of the institution as much as the nurses are, and the nature of their service gives them no inalignable and inviolable right to be the m: saters of it.

Our correspondent intim ites that with a proper medical superinten lent, committees fear that there would not be much for them to do except in a subordinate w ay and as doctors' assistants. In this they may be right. He also suggests that we might wisely follow Sir HERCULES ROBINSON'S advice, and make the Infirmary a purely Government institution. time past. After the subscription was Mr. Hughes pointed out that when he was at which communed the Prince Ruchy there were not more than 3000 ber Alfred Hospital, it would have been better for the Government not to have issued the grant to the old Infirmary, and not to have given any building money to the trusteen The infirmary was originally a Government institution, and intended as a Government charity. Private-subscriptions have only furnished a fraction of its income. It would not have been a had plan in the present stage of affairs to have made it exclusively a Government institution, and to have it kept under strict departmental control. The Prince Alfred Hospital would then have been the University Hospital, under the joint control of Clovernment, the University, and subscrithe opportubers. We should have had of seeing at work two systems of administration which would have mutually hecked each other, and a little wholeseme rivalry might have benefited both. As it is however, the committee is a necessary institution to represent the proprietors, and that committee may well pause before decid-ing to place itself in permanent sub-jection to the medical gentlemen whose services they may engage. The chief authority must rest somewhe common sense to suppose that it must rest with those who possess the power of appointment and dismissal.

It is argued, and not without a fair show of reason and experience, that committees often make bad managers that mittees often make bar managers—that they either interfero too much or too little, that they either tie the hands of their superintersdent, or do not sufficiently control him. This is no doubt true, but the rgument applies equally whether the superintendent is a medical man or not. There is, nowever, a sort of assumption that in the nature of things a medical man could be more of aniautocratthan a non-professional one, and that the would be better able to supervise the subordinate medicos, and that the latter would obey; and fear him more than they would a non-professional man. That altogether depends on the character of the men in the respective positions. In all the departments of State we are accustomed to see non-profes-sions I men at the head, and availing them selves of the services of professional advisers and professional executants. We do not insist on baving an engineer at the load of the Railway Department, or a lewyer as M inister for Justice, or a schoolmaster as Minister of Education. The head of a hospital has not only to govern doctors, but to gowern nurses, and to govern patients-to covern domestic servants, and trad esmen. He has a variety of functions to perform, and a variety of people to deal with. Supervising the resident and non-resident nectical men, though a very important part of nis duty, is after all only a part.

In connection with public education, there is has ily any subject of greater importance at present than that of the training and the examination of teachers. Nor is there any subect on which the educational authorities of Great Britain take longer to make up their mir.ds. It is very generally acknowledged that for secondary as well as for primary schools there should be some better system of training than is found at present; but these whose business it is to take action do not manage to agree about a practical scheme, and the opponents of reform, altinough few, are firm in their resistance. Eh ewhere training is considered to be as, necessary for teachers as for the members of any other profession; in England, how ever, for one section of schools no specia course of training is insisted upon, and so cer tificate of competency is required. "In I'm ance, in Germany, in the United States," says the Pall Mall Gazette, which recently reported a necting of the head masters of Wellington In llege in connection with this subject, " all ter chers are trained and an uncertificated tes cher is disqualified by law no less than an un certificated doctor. In England alone training is required for elementary teachers ondy, for women teachers it is looked upon as a useful accomplishment, and the head masters of our great Public schools sat for thace hours and more debating whether the this ig was possible, and, if possible, whether it vins desirable." For ten years past, as the Pail Mall reminds us, the subject in question has been before the authorities. Six or seven years ago a conference of head masters agreed that: something ought to be done, and the Unf versities were urged to take the matter up. This invitation was declined by Oxford, although the minority in favour of taking greater favour, a s of sconducting examinations, and its proposals were adopted by the Senate.

The University of Cambridge seems to have committed itself to the new But although two or three years have gone sings this step was taken very little has been done. The only body that has used the scheme, our contemporary informs us, is the Skinner street. Training College for women. Some of the hand masters vehemently oppose the interference of the Universities, while others declare that for the future they will appoint no assistant who does not bring a Uni certificate of competency. It is stated that the Government intend to settle the question about which so many doctors disagree, and that Mr. MUNDELLA will bring in a bill making training a necessity for s well as for primary schools. If Mr. Mu DELLA does not deal with the subject the probability is that some other Minister will have to do so at no distant date. The objections to Government interference are numerous and plausible enough. It is said that the genius of English institutions is on the side of liberty, and that the adoption of a scheme o compulsory training or of examinations would place head musters in fetters, and in this way njure the work it was intended to promot It is further argued that as they exist at present the secondary schools and distinguished by a charming variety, and that no advantage would accrue from such a dead level of uniformity as is To this it is added found in France. To this it is added that if the work of the ordinary school falls to qualify a student to teach, little will be gained by what is supplied by a training school. To add for the purposes of teaching a special course of training to the ordinary course of a high class school is, it is said, "a silly superfluity." Those hold this opinion, however, are they belief is gaining ground that some certificate of competency is even more necessary for middle-class schools than for elementary schools. In a speech delivered on his return from America a short time ago National Library of Australia dates to these examinations are the few, not

Two of the Victorian Ministers have been doing New South Wales. We can desire nothing better. Near as the two colonies are to one another, there are a great many New South Wales people who have very imperfect ideas of what the "cabbage garden" next door is like, and an equal number of Victorians who have no idea of what is doing in "sleepy New South Wales." Personal visits go a long way to correct this ignorance, but the whole population cannot be expected to make them. It will sufficiently answer the purpose if representative men, and those who have the guidance of public opinion, are able with their own eyes to see the facts as they are, and when politicians become Ministers they have specially good opportunities of making themselves acquainted with the industrial and political life of their neighbours. Our present visitors have been shown a good deal during the short time that they could spare to us, and are said to have expressed both pleasure and surprise at what they have seen. They will go back to Victoria with the conviction that free trade has not ruised New South Wales, and is not incomsisient with the maintenance of large tadactrial establishments of the sort that are saidable to our circumstances. Even if they smooth remain as attached as ever to protection for Victoria, they with the maintenance of large faudation easily lishments of the sort that are suitable to our circumstances. Even if they smooth remain as attached as ever to protection for Victoria, they will see that it is asking New South Wales too much to expect it to surrender its own policy, and that Mr. Essay's dream, that he would convert this colony to his riscal system, will have to remain a dream for some considerable time looger. Our population is increasing at an unprecedented rate, our revenue was never so large, and the value of private properly has advanced in a way that shows the faith of the people in the future of the colony. That we wandering Ministers will not be able, on their roturn, to ensure their protectionist Pramier that New South Wales, impatient at its slow progress, is just in the mood to follow the lead of Victoria.

Mr. Glasstone has completely neutralized the victory obtained by the Conservative Lords who had secured a select committee to inquire into the working of the Irish Land Act. Earl Glassviller, on behalf of the Government, has declined to take any share in the formation of the committee and that is equivalent to saying that no Liberal lord will accept a seat upon it. The other side may still possibly have the committee all to themsolves, may call the witnesses they have in view, and may elicit what evidence they like. But under such circumstances the value of the inquiry will be practically nil. It could only command public confidence if it was thorough and impurtial, and no attempt of the Conservative questioners to make it so would succeed in establishing it be report an authority. Still farther to check the action of the House of Lords, Mr. Chatsworsk has given a notice of motion in the Commons that any inquiry into the working of the Land Act at the present time would be untimely and inopportune; and further, that any attempt to defeat the operation of the Act would be injurious to the cause of good government in that country. This is a hovel cause do from the cause of the cause of good government in that country. This is a hovel cause of force the cause of good government in the cause o operation of the Act would be injurious to the cause of good government in that country. This is a movel course to pursue, as it is very unusual for one House to muzzle the other and say "ou shall not inquire." Mr. CLADSTONE is obviously of opinion that the inquiry is intended to be a covert stack on the Act, and will be worked as such, and therefore he is determined, at all hazads, to opine it. At this cause them it is polygon 40. Mr. transione mas mounted me pro-posal, so as to make the cloture inoperative without the appart of 100 votes, or, if there is a minority of 40, then there must be a majority of 200 votes. The Government has declined to take any share in the formation of a select committee to inquire into the working of the Irish Land Act; notwithstanding this, the Peers are resolved to put into effect the resolution they arrived at for the appointment of such committee. The atterances of the Premier in the course of the details in relative to the Queen's speech, relative to his being alive to the Queen's speech, relative to his being alive to the importance of local autonomy for Ireland, and his advice to the Home Rulers to define the relative functions proposed for the Irish and Imporial Parliament, before bringing the question before the latter, gave the Opposition an opportunity which they have not been slow to embrace. The remarks have not only been slow to embrace. The remarks have not only been subjected to party discussion, but have, it is alleged, been misinterpreted for party purposes. The Marquis of Hartington, to allay any slarm, and remove any misconception, has declared that Mr. Glaskstone's policy is regard to Home Rule is neither new nor dancerous. in regard to Home Rule is neither new nor dangerous, that the Government would never extertain the idea of setting up a l'arliament in Dublin. With regard to the cudition of Iraland one of our achternature. setting up a Parliament in Dublia. With regard to the condition of Ireland, one of our cablegrams of this morning reports that further arrests have been made in the counties of Cork and Clare of persons guilty of treason-falony. The agitation which was stirred up by General Skobeloff has not subsided. The Russian Government has officially declared that it is not pledged by the utterances of private persons, and that it intends to pursue a pacific policy. Meanwhile the excitoment in Austria and Germany is said to have increased, and Euperor William has expressed his indignation and sorrow at the continuance of wanton provocation, which may only lead to war. The final meeting of the Royal Highness the Prince of Wales made a speech at the meeting, referring to the benefits that would accrue from the undertakings.

The sum realized was over £70; thus reducing the debt of £150 to £80.

the year. But the schools which send canditates to these examinations are the few, not the many. The public have no sufficient means of knowing whether the teachers who are selected for the middle-class schools of are selected for the middle-class schools of the country are competent, and it would not be amiss if it had more ample means of forming an opinion as to the competency of forming an opinion as to the competency of the teachers who supply our primary schools. In England it is being seen that some better system for the training of teachers is getting to be indispensable, and that, if supplied at the widenes of two other witnesses, Mr. Raiph Halis and Mr. Rich, was taken; after which the Courts all, it must be by the Universities. The negligence of the Railway Department in leaving excavations on the transway in Elizabeth-street in a dangerour condition and insufficiently lighted, was brought before the District Court yesterday, when a cabman named Thomas White obtained a verdict against the Government for £15 damages. It seemed that White was driving along Rizabeth-street on the night of December 2, when the wheels of the vehicle got into a cutting. White was injured and also his horse, and his vehicle was considerably damaged. Another action for damages was also heard, but as it was shown that the accident out of which the claim grose was not the result of the negligence of the transarose was not the result of the negligence of the tram-way efficials, judgment was given for the defendant, the Commissioner for Railways.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE,

THE INTERNATIONAL CRICKET MATCH. FOURTH DAY.

national Cricket Match was yesterday brough The International Cricket Match was yesterday brought to a terminat on in favour of the combined eleven, which won by five wickets and I run. The weather was cool and favourable, and towards the close of the play there was an attendance of about 5900 people, who showed the deep interest they feit in the match by applauding every piece of good cricket shown by either side. Of course the proponderance of applause was in favour of the combined team, but not such an extent as to cause any unpleasant feeling amongst the visitors, most of whom will be of opins a that the Englishmen were beaten on their merits. There has been something said to the effect that the wicket on which the latter commonwed their first. weeket on which the latter commonced their first innings "pinched" at one end, owing to the water which was showered on it after the Intercolonial Match settling there, and that to this was due the small score they made; but this statement will heally bear scrutiny. Had any of the simple chances which Ullytt gave been taken, or the decision in the catch which Jones made from Barlow been, as many think it should have been, given against the bats-man, the some of the second innings of our visitors would have been reduced by at least 50 or 60 runs. Of course there were chances given on both siles, but the two cases referred to were most marked, and might have had the effect of altering the result of the game, while those given yesterday by the combined team could scarcely have affected it. It need only be added that the match, from beginning to finish, was played without the slightest unpleasantness. Play commonerd shortly after moon by Murdoch and Horan, the two net-outs, going to the wickets, the bowling being entrusted to Bates and Peats. At the close of the previous day's play, two weekets—Blackham's said Massie's—had failen for 35 runs, of which Murdoch had made two singles and Horan 6. The scoring at trist was very slow, both butsmen playing very carefully, though Horan did not neglect to punish the bowling whenever he had an opportunity. He succeeded in compiling 21, when Ullyett, who had just gone on in place of Pente, book his wicket with the first ball he delivered. This was a stated a prosper to the adulting of the compiling 2. rather d-pre-sing to the adulters of the combined team.

M. Donnell, however, who came next, soon caused a reaction, as he commenced hitting about vigorously, and beforche was dismissed by Shaw with a well-pitched ball, added a serviceable 25 to the total, which was then 115, Jones came next, and commenced, as in the first innings, to play very carefully. Murdech, however, did not stay long with him, as he was caught by Barlow after the score was increased to 127, and he had node 49. Garrett now joined Jones, and from the start hit out freely. Change after change was made in the bowling, and the field altered almost every over, but the two University players kept their wickets intact. The game terminated at about five minutes to 4 o'clock in favour of the combined eleven, Garrett making the winning hit by enting Midwinter for 2. Jones made 13 and Garrett 31. The latter, as usual, "came" when he was wanted, and although he gave one chance towards the finish of the game, his innings was a goad one. The bowling of the Englishmen was first-closs, and their fielding good. In the latter department they were quite equal to the combined eleven. If may be doubted, however, whether as batsmen the Englishmen, taken as a whole, were equal to the colonial representatives. fore he was dismissed by Shaw with a well-pitched ball,

The first of Cilyett's next Murdoch sent beautifully to leg for 3; the second M'Donnell pat, with the same skill, to the same place, and four runs were made. The 100 was posted amidst enthalisatic appliance by M'Donnell driving the last ball of Cilyett's over for 3. This rapid sewing brought about gameter at the south end, and bowling a maiden. Off the second of Cilyett's next Murdoch made a ricky hit, and the ball went up in the slips, but Emmett could not pet close enough to it. M'Donnell drove the third ball to the tence for 1. Misbrinter a maiden. Shaw now relieved Ulyett at the north end, and bowled a maiden. M'Donnell got a single for a tip in the slips of the third of Midwinter's next, and then the adjournment for lunch took place. Play was recumed at 2.25. Sir, —At a match played in 1842, at the old racecourse, between Market-street and Park-stract, by the first Australian club versus the inilitary cricketers, Mount Clarkson, of the Eagle Hotel, hit a bail from the western side of the ground, over College-street, and through a window in old M. Mary's Cathedral. In the same match he sent a ball away off the racecourse, over Read's toy bezaar in Elizabeth-street, into Cashersagh-street. Mount Clarkson is still living, and resides at Lamc Cove. I can prove this by many witnesses, and am prepared to back my opinion that these are bits of greater distance than that mentioned in this moraing's Herald by "An Old Harrovian." I am, &c., 21st February.

tion with Miss Ward, in the great French play, "Repontance."

"Cymbeline" was successfully repeated last night at the Theatre Royal, and will be kept upon the stage until "Antony and Cleopatra" can be produced. Mr. J. B. Steele has been specially engaged to play Antony, and Miss Pomeroy will be Cheopatra.

At the Galety Theatre "Michael Stropoff" was repeated: last night, and it will be performed nightly this week until Saturday, when "Jean Valjean," an adaptation of Victor Dugo's novel, "Les Miserables," will be produced, Mr. Dampier taking the part of the convict, Major.

Mr. J. L. Hall's benefit at the Opera House on Thursday night, and Mr. Fred. Mervin's at the Theatre Royal on Saturday afternoon, are likely to prove successful.

TE OLDE ENGLISHE FAYRE.

It is likely enough that the revels to be carried on at the Garden Palace during the Easter week will induce an amount of study in the direction of medieval manners and customs which will result in a temporary revival of such quaint forms of dress and speech assemly G. P. R. James' novels can parallel. "Nay, by my halidanse," and "Grammercy, fair sir" — or "ladye," as the case may be — will become as common phrases, as the case may be — will become as common phrases, as the cutchwords from "Patience" and "Pinafore," and the mysteries of the Chelses Bunhouse, the May, pole, and the Market Cross will be engerly investigated and as quickly solved by visitors' as will be the peculiarities of 1th century attree by the dames and damosels who will be attendants at the different stalls. The vast dimensions of the Garden Palace render it especially suirable for such a pageant as is proposed, and the consistes of ladies and pendensen who have the aftair in hand have done so much already, have so much more in hand, each have secured such noverlal patronage, that for them and their fair there can be no such word as fail, or, as they would write it, "fayle."

The movement is in sid of the funds of the Anglican churches known as Chist's and St. Thosmas', North Shere. All the leading residents are siding the phronteer, and the suide shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the side shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the side shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the side shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the side shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the side shows—may pole, will be constructed in the maindivision of the palace, running north and south; and the colonies.

Joint Stock 116or. 10dwt. 6gr. Mining is quiet. Continued dry weather prevents prospecting. Some good claims have been inspected during the week by a party of apsculators, but the results have not transpirel. Several new leases have been applied for in Possau Gully.
Alluvial mining has almost stopped. The gold lease at the gap of the range has a splendid show.

The Junction Gold-mining Company have just limished their 22-band stamper battery, with its being fitted with the latest improvements in gold-saving applicators. As

MISSION FOR TEACHING THE BLIND TO READ.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales Mission for Teaching the Blind to Read was held in the Protestant Hall, Castlerasgh street, last evening. The Hon. F. B. Suttor, Minister for Public Instruction, presided.

The Catainman referred to the speakers who were to follow him, and said that he did not think it necessary, and perhaps it was not dosirable, for him to address the meeting at any great length. He could not, however, refrain from saying that of all the many works promoted under philanthropy be believed that none discred more supparts and support than this mission for teaching the blind to read. (Applause.) He was sure that they would all be very glad to learn that very good progress had been made with the work. He thought that the committee were deserving of the thanks of the committee were doserving of the thanks of the committee were doserving that the committee were doserving that the committee were doserving the little of the committee were doserving his life to readering the lives of ins fellow-sufferers as happy as they could be made under the circumstances. It was extremely graftly ing to fluid that the work was being performed by so earnest a worker as Mr. Proseott. Although very much work had been done, very much work still remained to be done. He was atraid that the humber of blind persons was so great that it would require more than Mr. Precent to instruct them. He hoped that Mr. Precent's pupils would make such progress that some of them would be able to enter upon the same work. In considering works of that kind there was one thing that ought not to be forgotten; and that was that it was hardly possibly for persons who were in the enjoyment of all their senses to thoroughly understand what it was to be deprived of sight. There was no doubt that the condition of many of the blind night be improved very much. He believed that the best teacher a blind man could have was a fellow-sufferer—one who, understanding precisely what his feelings were, could explain to much greater advantage than ot

Books, Publications, &c. K'S SELECT LIBRARY.

s LIBRARY is founded upon the principle of Mudic's well-u Circulating Library. Its object is to familish its patrons with the very latest BOOKS, MAGAZINES, and REVIEWS.

Its establishment, eighteen years ago, supplied a want that had long been telt. By means of this literary the best and most readable Books, in all departments of literature, are selected by an agent in London, and despatched by the Orient steamers immediately they are published. Thus books are often in circulation from this institution long before they can be purchased in Sydney.

Heades the current literature of the day, the library contains many hundred volume of STANDARD WORKS.
